

Computer Diminishes Need For Emergency Blood Call

County Approves Agreement For Dominguez Gap Project

County supervisors have approved an agreement as part of the construction of the Dominguez Gap sea barrier project in the Wilmington area, Supervisor Burton W. Chace said today.

It calls for the County Flood Control District to deposit $31,000 with West Basin Municipal Water District to pay part of the cost for designing and constructing a water supply connection for the project.

West Basin Municipal Water District will make arrangements for the work with the Metropolitan Water District since it affects MWD's proposed second lower feeder and existing Victoria Street-223rd Street feeder line.

The cost of the design and connection has been estimated at $129,000 and CFCD will pay the balance at a later date, Chace said.

Water from the feeders will supply "recharge" wells at the Dominguez Gap project which will create a "mound" to seal off further intrusion by sea brine.

The Dominguez Gap project is one of three programs developed by the Flood Control District to protect the area's vital underground water supplies, Chace said.

Others are along the west coastline of the County and in the Alamitos Bay area of Long Beach.

During its first six months of operation, a computerized inventory control system established at the Red Cross Blood Center to insure the most efficient use of blood has "virtually wiped out emergency public appeals for blood," according to Red Cross here.

The effectiveness of a central, daily inventory of blood has increased steadily since the computer was installed as a further community service by the Blood Center in October 1966, says Mrs. James Rayner, volunteer chairman of the Blood Program for the Torrance-Lomita Red Cross Branch.

One day at 5 p.m. recently, seven pints of type "O" negative blood were desperately needed for a patient at Palm Harbor Hospital in Garden Grove and the nearest Red Cross blood depot in Orange County was completely out of this type. The "system" quickly found the seven "O" negative at five nearby hospitals.

Because of the emergency involved, the Orange County Sheriff's office collected and delivered the precious cargo to Palm Harbor Hospital. The patient later needed an additional pint, and this was dispatched from the Los Angeles Blood Center via the L.A. Sheriff's car to an awaiting Orange County longer be used as whole blood, she said, it is processed into blood derivatives for the treatment of many illnesses.

SHE SAID this cuts "at least in half" the number of bloods that become outdated (whole blood can be refrigerated for only 21 days for transfusion purposes) before they can be used.

Mrs. Rayner stressed that outdated blood is not wasted however. When blood can no are occurring, they start moving them from the stock of one hospital to another hospital that has an immediate need."

IN ANOTHER emergency case, three pints of "AB" negative blood were needed during the late evening hours at a hospital in this area. The Red Cross blood depot in Torrance reported a stock shortage of this type—whereupon the computerized inventory control located the necessary type at Children's Hospital and the U.C.L.A. Medical Center. Via a medical delivery service, the blood was quickly transported to the calling hospital and the patient's life was saved.

Mrs. Rayner added that the inventory system is being used daily to also control shortages in various blood groups and types. "When the Blood Center's distribution department sees that acute shortages in a particular type Gary Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. L. Anderson, 2749 Grand Summit Road, was named to the dean's list for spring at the Berklee School of Music in Boston.

EXPLAINING that the computer's principle function is to keep track of a daily average of 8,000 pints of blood on the shelves of the 221 hospitals which Red

County now serves in the two-county area, she cited some outstanding examples of its use:

JULIET PROWSE "Sweet Charity"

'Sweet Charity' To Open

Is there such a thing as a "sweet" lady of the evening? Juliet Prowse thinks so—and has substantial boxoffice records to back up her theory.

For several seasons, the leggy dancer-actress toured the United States in "Irma La Douce," the Broadway hit about life and love in gay Paris. "Irma," of course, was the name of the Parisian streetwalker played by Juliet in the sparkling musical. "La Douce" means "The Sweet," and audiences all over the country couldn't have agreed more.

Now, Miss Prowse is captivating audiences as "Sweet Charity," a New York taxi dancer in search of love and the blare of today's jazz halls.

And to prove the second "Sweet" is very palatable entertainment—even to die-conscious Los Angeles—Miss Prowse brings "Sweet Charity" to the Greek Theatre Sunday night for a one week engagement.

The second in the outdoor showplace's 15th season of summer presentations, "Sweet Charity" follows the current attraction, the National Ballet of Mexico, which closes tomorrow.

Boarding Policy 'Out' At Chadwick

After 30 years as a boarding school, Chadwick School in Rolling Hills will become an all-day school in September, 1968, according to an announcement by Andrew D. Shaw, chairman of the board of the Roessler-Chadwick Foundation.

According to the announcement, the change will improve the school's educational program and lead to a sounder financial position by more adequately serving the needs of the surrounding area. The area, it was noted, has changed dramatically from a rural community to a heavily populated suburban area.

Every effort will be made, said Shaw, to place boarding students in homes in this area for those boarders who wish to continue at Chadwick following the 1967-68 school year.
